

Boris Dubrovin Medal

The International School for Advanced Studies, (SISSA), with the support of the Moscow Mathematical Society and of the groups of the Istituto Nazionale di Alta Matematica (INDAM) denominated Gruppo Nazionale per la Fisica Matematica (GNFM) and Gruppo Nazionale per le Strutture Algebriche, Geometriche e le loro Applicazioni (GNSAGA), has established the Boris Dubrovin Medal in memory of Boris Anatolievich Dubrovin, who has been Professor at SISSA from 1993 to 2019.

This award recognizes exceptionally promising young researchers who have already made outstanding contributions to the fields of mathematical physics and geometry.

Requirements

There is no restriction on the nationality of Boris Dubrovin Medal recipients.

The recipient must have defended her/his Ph.D thesis in the solar year of the award or in the preceding 10 years, namely within 2016. The eligibility period is extended beyond 10 years in case of maternity, with a 2 year extension for each child born before the nomination deadline.

Nomination procedure and deadline

Nominations for the Boris Dubrovin Medal should be made by researchers active in the fields of the award. Self-nominations and nominations done by the Ph.D. advisors are not accepted.

Nominations must be sent by the 31st of January 2026 UTC +1 to the address dubrovin_medal@sissa.it. The nomination should include a short CV of the nominee with the year of the Ph.D. award, the advisor name and the relevant publications on which the nomination is based. The nomination should also contain the nominator name, relation to the nominee, institution and e-mail address (to confirm receipt of the nomination).

Results

The results of the selection will be notified to the sponsor and to the candidate by late March.

The recipient will receive a medal and an allowance to travel to the award ceremony to be held in SISSA in May/June 2026. The cost will be covered by SISSA. The recipient will also receive a monetary prize of 5,000 euros, made possible thanks to the contribution of SISSA-Medialab and Springer journal Letters in Mathematical Physics. In case of more than one recipient, the prize will be equally split among recipients.
